I'm not robot!

It turns out that alternate versions of the famous Charlie Brown theme, "Linus and Lucy," have been discovered first for more than 50 years. EW has your exclusive first listen to five of these never-heard-before tracks, which were found in the Lee Mendelson Film Productions archives during the pandemic after the executive producer asked his children to look for the original recordings from the Peanuts scores. The alternate versions are all unique variations of the famous song, some of which even include additional instruments such as horns and flutes. Anyone who has watched a Peanuts special or tuned the radio to the Christmas channel during the holidays has likely heard Vince Guaraldi's "Linus and Lucy." The famous piano tune was first used in A Charlie Brown Christmas, but was then used in almost every Peanuts special afterward, becoming both the unofficial Charlie Brown theme and also a perennial holiday favorite. IT'S THE GREAT PUMPKIN, CHARLIE BROWN The alternate takes were found on their original analog reels, packed away in a box labeled "Big Pumpkin Charlie Brown" that also included detailed session notes. Now, the unheard demo takes of "Linus and Lucy" are being released in the definitive remastered soundtrack of It's the Great Pumpkin, Charlie Brown. The album will feature seven previously unheard tracks, including "Linus and Lucy (Alternative Take 2)," which can be heard below exclusively from EW. The full album will be released on Aug. 26 (available to pre-order here) on vinyl, CD, and digital. in: Songs, Rankin/Bass songs, Villain songs Log in to edit The songs "Snow Miser" and "Heat Miser" were originally written by Maury Laws and Jules Bass for the 1974 Rankin-Bass stop-motion animated special The Year Without A Santa Claus. In that special, the songs were respectively performed by Dick Shawn as the Snow Miser and George S. Irving as his brother Heat Miser. The songs were reprised as one song in the 2006 live-action film adaptation, performed by Michael McKean as Snow Miser and Harvey Fierstein in the role of Heat Miser, and reprised again in the 2008 animated sequel A Miser Brothers' Christmas. While Irving reprised his role as Heat Miser in the latter reprise, Canadian voice actor Juan Chorian took over as Snow Miser, due to Dick Shawn having passed away in 1987. Both songs are included on the album Nick at Nite: A Classic Cartoon Christmas, Too. The Snow Miser's song was also heard in the 1997 movie Batman and Robin as Mr. Freeze (played by Arnold Schwarzenegger) attempts to have his minions sing it, so they watch the special and listen to Dick Shawn's version. Big Bad Voodoo Daddy, Barely Pink and the Swamp Zombies have all covered versions of this song. Lyrics Snow Miser's version Snow Miser: I'm Mister White Christmas, I'm Mister Snow.
